      2. After the routine, if it is deemed to be a technical issue, the competition directors will discuss with the head judge whether the lack of music affected their scores. If the team can re-perform, the deductions will stick for the performance before the music issue. The team could accrue additional deductions after the initial stopping point of the music, during their re-performance.

iv. If the routine needs to be stopped and the team is allowed to re-perform, the team must perform the entire routine full-out – no marking of routine elements – from the very beginning, but it will only be judged from the moment it was stopped. Any deductions accrued during the initial performance before the routine stop time will be taken. Any new deductions during the second performance before the routine stop time will not be taken.
